

Environmental Business Products Ltd. Sponsor Three Runners In London Marathon For Tommy's Charity

Environmental Business Products Ltd., the world's largest re-manufacturer of inkjet cartridges based in Park Royal, are sponsoring three runners in the London Marathon to raise £4,500 for Tommy's, the baby charity.

Jane Brewin, Chief Executive of Tommy's, says "We're thrilled to have had the ongoing support from Environmental Business Products Ltd. over the past eight years and to date, the company has committed £215,000 towards Tommy's vital research into premature birth, miscarriage and stillbirth. The simplicity of the funds they generate is fantastic - all it involves is people recycling their inkjet cartridges. In doing so, Environmental Business Products Ltd. commits essential funds to Tommy's - it couldn't be easier and their support is incredibly beneficial to our cause".

Each year, more than 60 million inkjet printer cartridges are thrown away needlessly, when they run out of ink. Recycling them instead through charity-linked collection schemes has untold benefits for the environment. It safeguards our health as it avoids waste incineration, which releases harmful toxins into the atmosphere and at the same time, it stops the drain on natural resources as every new printer cartridge takes up to six pints of oil to make. It also reduces the burden on landfill sites by millions of cubic feet of non-biodegradable material, which can take up to 1,000 years to decompose.

Used and empty printer cartridges should be sent to the charity in special FREEPOST envelopes, available by phoning Freephone 0800 43 55 76 or visit the website on www.inkjetbags.com.
